(F-3-100) ~~(F-1-24)~~ The Lewis Fout House is located on the land of Rocky Creek Farm to date earlier than the Titus Map of 1873, the building is not indicated on the map.

The property on which the building stands was willed to Lewis Fout by his stepfather in April, 1849. Upon Fout's death the land was sold to his heirs in March, 1868. The farm commonly known as Rocky Creek was owned collectively by the heirs until 1907 when it was sold at public sale.

The building is now a tenant house and may have initially been built for that purpose on Rocky Creek Farm. The house is a small one and a half story whitewashed brick residence laid in common bond.

Lewis Fout House

The house is a small one and a half story rectangular whitewashed brick residence laid in common bond which faces northeast from the west side of Ballenger Creek Pike.

The principle facade is three bays wide. The main entrance, a replaced door with four light transom and jack arch is located in the second bay.

Located in the remaining two bays on the first level are double hung 6/6 windows with jack arches. A frame nine pane dormer window extends from the roof to the west of the center of the building.

The structure is two bays deep. A one and one-half story frame addition extends to the rear of the building.

The structure is built on a whitewashed low random stone foundation. A flank gable tin roof covers the building and is attached to a plain boxed cornice.

A replaced brick chimney extends from the east gable and south gable end of the addition.
